EXHIBIT A

2022 California Building Standards Code

FACTUAL FINDINGS ESTABLISHING THE REASONABLE NEED FOR LOCAL AMENDMENTS TO PORTIONS OF THE BUILDING STANDARDS CODE BASED UPON CLIMATIC, TOPOGRAPHICAL, GEOLOGICAL, OR ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

Health and Safety Code sections 17922, 17958, 17958.5, and 17958.7 permit the City to amend the 2022 California Building Standards Code as reasonably necessary because of local climatic, geological, and topographical conditions.

Section 1 of this Exhibit sets forth various findings that apply to Vallejo, explaining the administrative provisions and the local conditions that necessitate the various changes.

Section 2 of this Exhibit explains which findings apply to which amendments.

In numerous instances herein, the City has opted to make findings even though it is not legally required to do so. For example, if a change to a building standard is administrative in nature, then no finding is legally required. Likewise, if an amendment does not contradict a building standard, but merely supplements the standard, then the City need not make a finding.

Section 1. General Findings.

The following findings apply in the City of Vallejo and explain why the changes to the California Building Standards Code are reasonably necessary because of climatic, geologic, or topographical conditions or local administrative regulations in the City.

A. Climatic, Geological, and Topographical Conditions

The City of Vallejo has 18.9 miles of shoreline. At any given time, there are an estimated 500 vessels moored within 10-200 feet of the Vallejo shoreline. Portions of the shoreline, especially near vessel mooring sites, are occupied by buildings, particularly those with wood-framed structures or sidings, as well as piers and pilings that are combustible. Highly combustible dry grass, weeds and brush are common in the areas adjacent to built-up locations at or near the shoreline six to eight months of each year. The arrangement and location of natural and human-made surface features, including hills, slopes, housing developments, commercial developments, fire stations, streets, and roads, combine to limit feasible response routes for fire resources. Fires moving through steep terrain double for every 20 percent of slope increase. Erratic terrain and erratic winds can cause fires to grow in an unpredictable manner.

Precipitation ranges from 15 to 24 inches per year with an average of 20.39 inches per year. Ninety percent falls during the months of October through March and 10 percent from April through September. Typically, 0.8 percent of rainfall occurs during the fire season. This is a dry period of at least six months. Additionally, the area is subject to recurrent drought. The climatic region is currently in a drought phase that has lasted nine years. Additional droughts can be expected locally in the future.

Temperatures have been recorded as high as 111 degrees Fahrenheit. Average summer highs are in the 90-degree range. Prevailing winds in the area are from the south or southwest in the mornings and from the north or northwest in the afternoons. However, winds are experienced from virtually every direction at one time or another. Velocities are generally in the 14 miles per hour (MPH) to 23 MPH range, gusting from 25 to 35 MPH. Forty MPH winds are experienced occasionally and winds up to 55 MPH have been registered locally. During the winter half of the year, strong, dry, gusty winds from the north move through the area for several days, creating extremely dry, hazardous fire conditions.

Local climatic, geologic, and topographic conditions impact fire prevention efforts, and the frequency, spread, acceleration, intensity, and size of fires which involve buildings in this community. Therefore, it is found to be reasonably necessary that the 2022 California Fire Code be changed or modified to mitigate the effects of the risks associated with the above conditions and allow access to all vessels moored, tied, anchored or otherwise to the shoreline of the City.

B. Administrative Regulations.

Local regulations necessary to carry out the application of the California Building Standards Code that do not establish standards may be enacted without meeting the requirements of sections 18941.5, 17958, 17958.5 and 17958.7 of the Health and Safety Code. Through the recommendation of the City Attorney, such amendments made to the California Building Standards Code are hereby found to be either administrative or procedural in nature which do not impact the technical standards within the Code or concern themselves with subjects which are not covered in the Code. The changes made include provisions making the Code compatible with other ordinances enforced by the City.

C. Not Applicable (N/A).

No findings need to be made because the code section at issue does not amend any building standard.

Section 2. Which Findings Apply to Which Amendments.

Amendments to the 2022 Edition of the California Building Standards Code are found reasonably necessary based on the condition cited within this Ordinance and Section 1 above or for an administrative process as follows.
